Congress Awaits Gavel Concluding Long Session

6-Month Meeting At End

U. S.-SOVIET SIGN NEW TRADE PACT

Agreement On Vital Deficiency Bill Being Sought

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—Adjournment of the first session of the 76th congress by late afternoon hours was the goal of house and senate leaders today as they pushed for agreement on conflicting provisions of the third deficiency appropriation bill.

Wary after more than six months of legislative battling, members of both houses eagerly awaited the gavel's fall signaling the close of one of the most hectic parliamentary sessions in recent years.

Adjournment fever, inflamed by continued Washington heat, portended speedy agreement to controversial items in the appropriations measure.

While other minor matters were on the legislative calendars, the appropriation bill was the key to adjournment.

The house passed the $215,000,000 bill only after cutting it to $54,000,000. The senate restored $119,000,000 of Commodity Credit Corporation funds and other miscellaneous items, finally raising the measure to an estimated $190,000,000.

Real Total Unknown

Not a member of the senate knew the real total of the bill, because it was brought on the floor immediately after house passage. The senate appropriations committee pushed it along so fast that there was no time to get printed copies from the government printing office.

Assurances from house leaders that most of the restorations by the senate would be accepted, virtually assured passage.

VALIANT EFFORT TO SAVE HOLT BOY'S LIFE FAILS

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 5—A valiant fight for life ended today in death of two and a half year old Harold Holt, Jr., son of an employed Ohio river deck-hand.

All the resources of science had been mustered to keep Harold alive but he died in New Rochelle hospital at 8:10 last night of "intestinal obstruction." Harold's mother was at his bedside when the end came but his father, after giving his son a blood transfusion yesterday went home because "he couldn't afford to stay any more."

Harold was brought to the hospital March 16 from his home at Monongahela, Pa., after physicians in Pittsburgh had declared the child had "only two weeks to live." He was suffering from Wilms' tumor.

Dr. Alexander J. Chalko, in charge of the X-ray therapy department, treated the child with deep X-ray treatment that had proved effective in other cases of Wilms' tumor. Harold responded to the treatment and was able to go to a nursery home near the hospital and report for treatments only once a week.

Nine days ago he suffered a relapse and his parents were summoned. Medical science had exhausted its resources in attempting to curtail the disease. No mention of the tumor was made in the hospital report of the child's death but Wilms' tumor is known to be a malignant growth which originates in the kidneys and spreads to other organs.

CHICAGO LEARNS OTHER CZECHS TO TAKE LIVES

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 5—The death plunge of Mrs. Adela Langer and her two children today based reports of a "suicide" colony of other European exiles who have sworn to take their lives rather than return to their Nazi-ruled homelands.

As plans were made for an anti-Fascist demonstration at the funeral of Mrs. Langer and her children on Monday, it was revealed there are at least 500 other refugees in Chicago who face deportation when their temporary permits expire the end of this month.

Mrs. Langer, wife of a Czechoslovakian Jewish industrialist, hurled her two sons, Karel Tommy, 6, and Jan Misha, 4, from the thirteenth floor of a downtown hotel and then leaped after them Thursday night.

A coroner's jury yesterday heard the woman's husband, Karel, testify to his wife's fear that they would be forced to return to Prague from which they fled after the German occupation.

Rail Police Nab Two Ohio Prison Farm Fugitives

Nathan King, 47, and Harold Curtner, 39, Surrender When Confronted In Yards; Vandervort, Hurt, Hunted In Fields

Circleville and Pickaway county officers were asked Saturday to be on the lookout for two men who escaped about 8:30 a. m. from the London prison farm.

One of the men is James Lee, 31, serving time for second degree murder. He was sentenced from Montgomery county. The other escapee was Ephraim Wells, 30.

Officers were told to use caution in the apprehension of Lee.

LONDON, O., Aug. 5—Captured by railroad police at Lima, two more London prison farm inmates were back behind bars today as authorities pressed search for the last of the four who escaped Wednesday.

Those taken into custody were Nathan King, 47, Lucas county robber and Harold Curtner, 39, Miami county robber. They offered no resistance when apprehended. Another one, Charles Adomack, Cleveland, surrendered shortly after the escape.

Information offered by the two led prison farm officials to believe that the fourth convict, Louis Vandervort, 36-year-old slayer of a Wilmington police officer, may be lying wounded in a field near the institution.

Both asserted that Vandervort was injured when he fell 15 feet to a concrete floor while attempting to slide down a rope fashioned of hospital gauze. They contended that the injured man left them 15 minutes after the quartet gained freedom by burning the bars on a window of the prison hospital.

Two Recognized

Curtner and King were arrested by Detective Lieutenant R. W. Steen of Lima, and B. J. Scovill, of Springfield, railroad police. They said they recognized the two from pictures they had seen.

The pair told authorities they escaped at 2:30 a. m. Wednesday and went without food until they reached Springfield Thursday night. Each had about $1, but they kept away from highways, walking the entire 22 miles to Springfield through fields and woods.

UNIONISTS VOTE ON PEACE PLAN

7,500 To Determine Course In Argument With G. M.; Work To Resume

DETROIT, Aug. 5—Seventy five hundred C. I. O. unionists in five cities today were to vote on the plan to settle the month-long strike against General Corporation tool and die shops.

The plan, accepted by negotiators meeting with Ace Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey Friday, was approved later in the day by a strike council of union officers.

It was expected the rank and file would ratify the agreement today and permit General Motors to resume preparations for its 1940 model cars Monday. A spokesman for the corporation said the strike already has delayed the 1940 model production season two weeks.

Although terms of the agreement have not yet been made public, it was believed that the major inducements to the C. I. O. Auto Workers Union were a spread work plan to raise the annual income of skilled workers, and recognition of the C. I. O. Union as the bargaining agent in all plants where the rival A. F. L. union has no bargaining committee setup. Approximately 40 plants fall in this category.

ELECTION BOARD OFFICIALS MEET FOR EQUIPMENT

Officials for the city primary to be held next Tuesday reported at the Board of Elections headquarters Saturday afternoon for their supplies.

From all indications it appeared few supplies would be needed. The vote is expected to be unusually light since there are only two contests, both Democratic, and both for council positions.

In the Third Ward, George G. Groom and James I. Smith, Jr., seek the nomination. The contest in the Fourth Ward is between William M. Reid, incumbent, and T. M. Barnes, former councilman.

Voters in other city wards, if they vote, will be giving complimentary votes to candidates with no party opposition.

Commerce With Red Country To Be Regarded Similar To Other Friends

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—Ten days after delivering a severe economic rebuff to Japan, the United States today signed a new trade agreement of far-reaching importance with Nippon's Far Eastern rival, the Soviet Union.

The American action followed swiftly after abrogation by Washington of its 28-year-old treaty of friendship and commerce with Japan—the basic document on which normal, friendly economic intercourse between the two nations has been founded.

In contrast to the strained relations between the United States and Japan, which have resulted from attacks on American nationals, property and treaty rights in China and which climaxed in the treaty termination, the state department hailed the trade pact with Soviet Russia as providing "a basis for the gratifying expansion of trade between the two countries."

Political observers regarded the two separate moves as of considerable importance in the general lining up of nations and the economic war between the democracies and the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis.

Notes Exchanged

The new treaty, renewing a twelve-month agreement of the last year, came into effect today with exchange of notes between the American embassy and the Soviet foreign office in Moscow.

The Soviet Union agreed to purchase a minimum of $40,000,000 of American goods during the next 12 months. In return the (Continued on Page Eight)

JAMES SMITH, 42, CITED IN MISHAP ON SCIOTO TRAIL

Frank Scott, 18, and his uncle, James Smith, 42, were in the Ross county jail Saturday in default of payment of fines of $100 and costs each. Scott was charged with leaving the scene of an accident; Smith with aiding and abetting Scott to leave the accident. The fines were imposed by Mayor Harold H. Brown, of Chillicothe.

James Smith, 42, of Huston street, is under arrest in Chillicothe on a charge of having aided and abetted a motorist to leave the scene of an accident. The action is believed to be the first of its kind in Chillicothe court records. Smith was placed in the Chillicothe city prison Friday pending arraignment.

Previously Frank Scott, 18, of Circleville Route 5, had been arrested for having left the scene of an accident. The accident involved is the one in which Chauncey Francis, 39, of Laurelville Route 2, was injured fatally by a hit-skip near Chillicothe. Scott is being held in the Ross county jail.

D. W. Miller, state highway patrolman, said the arrest is based on the belief that Smith, an uncle of Scott, dissuaded the youth from stopping after the accident.

The hub cap on an auto driven by Mrs. Roscoe Bond, New Holland Route 1, was damaged at 11:45 p. m. Friday in a minor accident on S. Court street. Police said the Bond car was struck by a Black & White cab, driven by Russell George, York street, as the cab was being backed from the curb.

The plan, accepted by negotiators meeting with Ace Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey Friday, was approved later in the day by a strike council of union officers.

It was expected the rank and file would ratify the agreement today and permit General Motors to resume preparations for its 1940 model cars Monday. A spokesman for the corporation said the strike already has delayed the 1940 model production season two weeks.

Although terms of the agreement have not yet been made public, it was believed that the major inducements to the C.I.O. Auto Workers Union were a spread work plan to raise the annual income of skilled workers, and recognition of the C. I. O. Union as the bargaining agent in all plants where the rival A. F. L. Union has no bargaining committee setup. Approximately 40 plants fall in this category.

ELECTION BOARD OFFICIALS MEET FOR EQUIPMENT

Officials for the city primary to be held next Tuesday reported at the Board of Elections headquarters Saturday afternoon for their supplies.

From all indications it appeared few supplies would be needed. The vote is expected to be unusually light since there are only two contests, both Democratic, and both for council positions.

In the Third Ward, George G. Groom and James I. Smith, Jr., seek the nomination. The contest in the Fourth Ward is between William M. Reid, incumbent, and T. M. Barnes, former councilman. Voters in other city wards, if they vote, will be giving complimentary votes to candidates with no party opposition.

MOSCOW WINS EQUALITY

Commerce With Red Country To Be Regarded Similar To Other Friends

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5—Ten days after delivering a severe economic rebuff to Japan, the United States today signed a new trade agreement of far-reaching importance with Nippon's Far Eastern rival, the Soviet Union.

The American action followed swiftly after abrogation by Washington of its 28-year-old treaty of friendship and commerce with Japan—the basic document on which normal, friendly economic intercourse between the two nations has been founded.

In contrast to the strained relations between the United States and Japan, which have resulted from attacks on American nationals, property and treaty rights in China and which climaxed in the treaty termination, the state department hailed the trade pact with Soviet Russia as providing "a basis for the gratifying expansion of trade between the two countries."

Political observers regarded the two separate moves as of considerable importance in the general lining up of nations and the economic war between the democracies and the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis.

Notes Exchanged

The new treaty, renewing a twelve-month agreement of the last year, came into effect today with exchange of notes between the American embassy and the Soviet foreign office in Moscow.

The Soviet Union agreed to purchase a minimum of $40,000,000 of American goods during the next 12 months. In return, the

JAMES SMITH, 42, CITED IN MISHAP ON SCIOTO TRAIL

Frank Scott, 18, and his uncle, James Smith, 42, were in the Ross county jail Saturday in default of payment of fines of $100 and costs each. Scott was charged with leaving the scene of an accident; Smith with aiding and abetting Scott to leave the accident. The fines were imposed by Mayor Harold H. Brown, of Chillicothe.

James Smith, 42, of Huston street, is under arrest in Chillicothe on a charge of having aided and abetted a motorist to leave the scene of an accident. The action is believed to be the first of its kind in Chillicothe court records. Smith was placed in the Chillicothe city prison Friday pending arraignment.

Previously Frank Scott, 18, of Circleville Route 5, had been arrested for having left the scene of an accident. The accident involved is the one in which Chauncey Francis, 39, of Laurelville Route 2, was injured fatally by a hit-skip near Chillicothe. Scott is being held in the Ross county jail.

D. W. Miller, state highway patrolman, said the arrest is based on the belief that Smith, an uncle of Scott, dissuaded the youth from stopping after the accident.

CAB, CAR IN MISHAP

The hub cap on an auto driven by Mrs. Roscoe Bond, New Holland Route 1, was damaged at 11:45 p. m. Friday in a minor accident on S. Court street. Police said the Bond car was struck by a Black & White cab, driven by Russell George, York street, as the cab was being backed from the curb.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 5—Their two-game losing streak broken by a 5 to 3 victory, the league-leading Cincinnati Reds were to play the Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game of a series today.

Bucky Walters, Cincinnati hurler, was credited with the victory. It was his 19th this season. He was the first pitcher in the two major leagues to attain that mark this year.

Walters allowed the Dodgers eight hits, one a home run by Dolf Camilli. It was his 17th circuit clout of the season.

Every Red player hit safely at least once.

The Redlegs play the Dodgers again this afternoon and take on the Brooklyn crew in a double-header Sunday. All reserved tickets have been sold for the Sunday game.

Whitney Moore and Johnny Vander Meer were being considered as Saturday pitchers by Manager Bill McKechnie.

Paul Derringer was down to hurl one of the Sunday frays with Grissom, Thompson and several others available for the other contest.

Medwick In Hero Role For Cards

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 5—Whatever his standing with the club officials, Joe Medwick was the hero of Cardinal fandom today because of his mighty showing in yesterday's game with Philadelphia, which St. Louis won 9 to 8.

Medwick, who stirred a controversy when he was jerked in the ninth inning recently by Manager Roy Blades, yesterday collected four hits including three doubles.

Among the three runs he batted in was the tying tally in the eighth and the winning counter in the 10th inning. Handling four put outs, he had a perfect day in the field.

RIGGS FAVORED TO OUST WOOD IN TENNIS TILT

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 5—Invoking the hoary sports axiom that "ya gotta beat de champ," the assembled sages make Bobby Riggs a favorite over Sidney B. Wood, Jr., in the big money battle for the $1,000 President's Cup today.

Riggs, who has developed a reputation for a fine art, has yet to excite the spectators with a show of real activity here, but it is presumed he will agitate himself to the proper pitch when the occasion demands.

It is the cracked-voiced Chicagoan's opportunity to win his third leg on the President's Cup and make it his for keeps. Wood, a member of the Meadow club, is performing the role of policeman to protect the valuable trophy against a permanent departure.

If it were not for his haunting laziness, there would be no question at all.

Wood, who won the Meadow Club event in 1930 and 1932 and is a finalist for the fourth time, gave a convincing performance against Ernie Sutter, Tulane graduate, in the semi-final.

Circleville Club Winner In Lancaster Ball Game

Circleville Kiwanians went ahead of the Lancaster Kiwanis Club Friday evening in the first of a two out of three softball series with a chicken dinner at stake. The losing club will be host to the winners at the conclusion of the soft ball series.

The game was closely contested in the first couple of innings, but the local team started to hit the ball to all corners of the lot in the later innings of the nine frame game to win easily.

Bob Terhune, who pitched for the localities, turned in a splendid job and deserved a shutout. His battery mate, Wendell Boyer, starred, too.

The teams will meet in Circleville on a date not yet determined.

The local club won the dinner last year in two straight games.

Tales In Tidbits

By William Ritt

Life is certainly tough for those international league pennant contenders . . . First the desperate Giants snatch away their talent parked with the league-leading Jersey City club . . . Boy, did that tickle the second-place Buffalo Bisons! . . . And then the Cleveland Indians grab Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau off Buffalo! . . . That may wreck the Bisons' flag chances — and the Indians haven't a chance this year anyway. So why?

The Cincy Reds are leading the National league from way out to here, but the club moguls are still doing a little worrying . . . The Rhineland outfield is not of pennant caliber . . . And some of the games recently dropped by the pace setters have been due to that little fact . . . And in August Bill McKechnie's boys must play 22 games against the other three western clubs, who are a lot tougher than the eastern outfits.

There's a plan under discussion of establishing a race track at or near the world's fair on Long Island . . . The coming of the mutuel machines to New York racing has track operators excited . . . And it wouldn't be surprising if one or two wheels pop up in convenient New Jersey.

Someone recalls that Tom Sharkey, a near-but-never-was champion, battled all four of the first heavyweight title holders . . . And collected a measly 32,800 bucks in total purses . . . To get that dough Tom scrapped a total of 71 rounds against such opposition as John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, Jim Jeffries and Bob Fitzsimmons.

Remember Bull Sadie? Whatever became of Bull Sadie, who battled a fellow named Jack Dempsey a long, long time ago? . . . That's easy — he's now Fred Saddy (his right name) and he officiates as secretary of the Wisconsin boxing commission.

Bill DeLancey, brilliant young Cardinal catcher whose very promising career was snapped off short by illness some years ago, is staging a comeback . . . But not behind the bat . . . He's the successful manager of the Albuquerque, N. M., Arizona-Texas league team . . . It's a Card farm. Watch that Bob Collins, catcher for the Los Angeles Angels . . . He's so good Coast League fans are sure he'll be in a Chi Cub uniform next Spring — and from then on.

One record that is almost certainly safe this year is that of Babe Ruth's total homers for a season . . . The four-bagger producers in both big leagues have fallen way off in the production of their specialties.

Drafts Make Good
Fifteen out of 18 youngsters drafted by the major leagues this year are still in the big time at this writing . . . That is an unusually large number.

Umpires, whose lot has always been unenviable, now are getting a few breaks . . . Hometown fans from Pittsburgh, Kas., recently showered Ump George Barr at a celebration in St. Louis — with gifts not pop bottles . . . And the arbiters in the recent A. A. all-star game were given presents, same as the players.

If the Reds win the pennant some of Cincinnati's rabid fans will have the experience of watching a world series game while sitting over traffic . . . Some of the

COUNTRY CLUB GOLFERS READY TO SEEK TITLE

Willis Liston To Defend Title Won Last Year In Tournament

FIRST ROUND DATE AUG. 14

Two Other Divisions Lined Up By Bowman To Provide Competition

Pickaway Country Club golfers were preparing Saturday for first round competition in the club's annual championship tournament. The title of champion is now held by Willis Liston, E. Main street, who played superior golf last Fall to knock off the trophy.

Liston plans to defend his title, but is promised much close competition from several golfers who have been turning in scores in the low 80's. The champion, too, has been carding some near-par figures and is given a good chance to go far in the tournament.

The first round must be played by Aug. 14, Bill Bowman, club professional, declared Saturday. The first golfer named in the following pairings is responsible for arranging his match, Bowman said. The pairings are:

Championship Flight
Liston vs. Sibrel; J. P. Noecker vs. Carruth; John Eshelman vs. Berthold; Hatcher vs. John Mader; John Jenkins vs. Claude Kraft; G. D. Phillips vs. T. O. Gilliland; Dr. Coers vs. N. E. Reichelderfer; John Taggart vs. Bob Friece.

Second Division
Charles Glitt vs. Bill Crist; C. R. Barnhart vs. A. L. Wilder; George Myers vs. Bill Friece; Gib Hill vs. C. A. Armstrong; Workman vs. Bob Hillard; John Haney vs. George Armstrong; Brombacher vs. Dr. Grattidge; Lester Reid vs. C. T. Gilmore.

Third Division
F. E. Barnhill vs. M. D. Clayton; Waltz vs. E. W. Lutz; George Speakman vs. Bill Radloff; Joe Doyle vs. Herb Smith; Dr. Stewart vs. Max Friedman; John Clifton vs. McRoberts; Dr. Gardner vs. Paul Wallace.

seats which would be added to Croley field would extend over a street which passes the ball park.

Modern pitchers are getting another rap from an old-timer—Chief Bender . . . The old Philadelphia Athletics mound star says pitchers of today should sweat their ailments instead of taking protracted layoffs.

A lot of the boys think the Giants certainly pulled a bloomer when they let Max Butcher get away from the Phillies to the Pirates . . . The Terrymen need pitchers, good pitchers, to a greater extent than any other major club.

The influence of the comic strips can be seen in the nicknames of two current big leaguers . . . Flash Gordon won his nom de plume from the Sunday adventure page of the same name, while Boob McNair can thank Rube Goldberg's Boob McNutt for his nickname.

Sportsman's park, St. Louis, has the only shoe shining stand in a major league park . . . It probably was installed so fans of the Browns could come away from a game with some benefit to show for the afternoon.

Unless you are a really big boy your chances of becoming a National leaguer aren't so good . . . More than half of the regular players in the senior circuit are six-footers or better.

Syracuse and Penn State
Two of the most improved football teams in the east next autumn will be Syracuse and Penn State . . . At least, that's the opinion of Sleepy Jim Crowley, the Fordham coach.

Clark Griffith, the "Old Fox" of baseball, shows he still knows his ball players . . . The Washington owner sent Pitcher Robert Ortiz to the Charlotte Piedmont league club and told them he wanted Ortiz to be trained as an outfielder . . . Now Roberto has become the slugging king of the league.

When the nag you bet on gets nicked at the wire on a big stake race the owner is plenty sorrier than you . . . It is estimated the entry fees and the feed, transportation and training bills of a good three-year-old total $7,500 for the year.

These can't be such bad times after all—considering that terrific play by the punters at Arlington (Chicago) . . . The mutuels showed $737,591 bet on a single day's card of eight races!

Jap Sports Hard Hit
Japanese athletes are feeling the hardship of war due to the shortage of rubber . . . In league baseball games the torn balls are patched and continue in use . . . Tennis players are limited to the use of one ball per match.

Passeau, Others Stellar In Major League Jousts

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—If the Chicago Cubs had more mound workers like Claude Passeau, big right-hander acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies early in the season, they might be in better position today to repeat in the National League pennant race.

Passeau turned in his brightest pitching job of the season yesterday when he set back the Boston Bees with four hits, 1 to 0. Passeau fanned five bees and gave no passes in blanking the Beantowners for his ninth triumph of the year.

Lou Fette gave Passeau plenty of opposition, scattering eight hits and being vulnerable only in the third inning when the Cubs put across the lone run of the contest. Stanley Hack walked, was sent to third by Billy Herman's single and crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly by Augie Galan.

The Bees complained three times that the cagey Passeau was using the illegal spit-ball and Claude was warned each time by the umpires, but refused to be perturbed as he fashioned his near masterpiece.

The victory left the Cubs 11 games behind the leading Cincinnati Reds and 1½ games behind the second place St. Louis Cardinals, and thus in position to move up a notch if the Cards suddenly should slip.

Overtime contests spotted the major league program.

Joe Medwick, with three doubles and a single, showed his willingness to cooperate with his fellow St. Louis Cardinals by providing the punch that brought the Red Birds their sixth straight in their effort to retain second place. Medwick doubled to tie the score in the eighth and doubled again to beat the Phils 9 to 8 in the 13th inning.

Rookie Fern Bell smashed a single with the bases filled in the 11th inning to bring Pittsburgh a 3 to 2 triumph over the New York Giants. Mel Ott's 20th homer proved to be in vain. Charley Gelbert's triple and Johnny Bloodworth's single earned Washington a 6 to 5 success over the Chicago White Sox in the 10th inning of an American league tussle. Relief Pitcher Clint Brown made his 42nd mound appearance for the Sox and was tagged with the loss.

The New York Yankees overcame homers by Heath, Trosky and Hale as they bolstered their American league lead with a 5 to 4 victory over Cleveland. Charley Keller hit a homer for the Yanks. The St. Louis Browns licked the Philadelphia Athletics, 3 to 1. Detroit and Boston stayed idle so that they might schedule a doubleheader for Boston Aug. 6.

In a night game, Bucky Walters scored his 19th victory of the season as the Cincinnati Reds defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5 to 3. Walters was pounded freely in the early innings, but survived behind sensational fielding, then allowed the Dodgers their final run in the ninth when he served Dolf Camilli a home run ball.

LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 5—Whatever his standing with the club officials, Joe Medwick was the hero of Cardinal fandom today because of his mighty showing in yesterday's game with Philadelphia, which St. Louis won 9 to 8. Medwick, who stirred a controversy when he was jerked in the ninth inning recently by Manager Roy Blades, yesterday collected four hits including three doubles. Among the three runs he batted in was the tying tally in the eighth and the winning counter in the 10th inning. Handling four put outs, he had a perfect day in the field.

RIGGS FAVORED TO OUST WOOD IN TENNIS TILT

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 5—Invoking the hoary sports axiom that "ya gotta beat de champ," the assembled sages make Bobby Riggs a favorite over Sidney B. Wood, Jr., in the big money battle for the $1,000 President's Cup today. Riggs, who has developed a reputation for a fine art, has yet to excite the spectators with a show of real activity here, but it is presumed he will agitate himself to the proper pitch when the occasion demands.

It is the cracked-voiced Chicagoan's opportunity to win his third leg on the President's Cup and make it his for keeps. Wood, a member of the Meadow club, is performing the role of policeman to protect the valuable trophy against a permanent departure.

If it were not for his haunting laziness, there would be no question at all.

Wood, who won the Meadow Club event in 1930 and 1932 and is a finalist for the fourth time, gave a convincing performance against Ernie Sutter, Tulane graduate, in the semi-final.

Circleville Club Winner In Lancaster Ball Game

Circleville Kiwanians went ahead of the Lancaster Kiwanis Club Friday evening in the first of a two out of three softball series with a chicken dinner at stake. The losing club will be host to the winners at the conclusion of the soft ball series.

The Circleville team won 13-3 in a game played on No. 6 diamond of Miller park in Lancaster.

The game was closely contested in the first couple of innings, but the local team started to hit the ball to all corners of the lot in the later innings of the nine frame game to win easily.

Bob Terhune, who pitched for the localities, turned in a splendid job and deserved a shoutout. His battery mate, Wendell Boyer, starred, too.

The teams will meet in Circleville on a date not yet determined. The local club won the dinner last year in two straight games.

Tales In Tidbits

By William Ritt

Life is certainly tough for those International league pennant contenders. First the desperate Giants snatch away their talent parked with the league-leading Jersey City club. . . Boy, did that tickle the second-place Buffalo Bisons. . . And then the Cleveland Indians grab Ray Mack and Lou Boudreau off Buffalo. . . That may wreck the Bisons' flag chances — and the Indians haven't a chance this year anyway. So why?

The Cincy Reds are leading the National league from way out to here, but the club moguls are still doing a little worrying. . .

The Rhineland outfield is not of pennant caliber. . . And some of the games recently dropped by the pace setters have been due to that little fact. . .

McKechnie's boys must play 22 games against the other three western clubs, who are a lot tougher than the eastern outfits. . .

There's a plan under discussion of establishing a race track at or near the world's fair on Long Island. . . The coming of the mutual machines to New York racing has track operators excited. . . And it wouldn't be surprising if one or two wheels pop up in convenient New Jersey. . .

Someone recalls that Tom Sharkey, a near-but-never-was champion, battled all four of the first heavyweight title holders. . . And collected a measly 32,800 bucks in total purses. . . To get that dough Tom scrapped a total of 71 rounds against such opposition as John L. Sullivan, Jim Corbett, Jim Jeffries and Bob Fitzsimmons. . .

Remember Bull Sadie? Whatever became of Bull Sadie, who battled a fellow named Jack Dempsey a long, long time ago? . . . That's easy — he's now Fred Saddy (his right name) and he officiates as secretary of the Wisconsin boxing commission. . .

Bill DeLancey, brilliant young Cardinal catcher whose very promising career was snapped off short by illness some years ago, is staging a comeback. . .

But not behind the bat. . . He's the successful manager of the Albuquerque, N. M., Arizona-Texas league team. . . It's a Card farm. . . Watch that Bob Collins, catcher for the Los Angeles Angels. . . He's so good Coast League fans are sure he'll be in a Chi Cub uniform next Spring — and from then on. . .

One record that is almost certainly safe this year is that of Babe Ruth's total homers for a season. . . The four-bagger producers in both big leagues have fallen way off in the production of their specialties. . .

Drafties Make Good Fifteen out of 15 youngsters drafted by the major leagues this year are still in the big time at this writing. . . That is an unusually large number. . .

Umpires, whose lot has always been unenviable, now are getting a few breaks. . . Hometown fans from Pittsburg, Kas., recently showered Ump George Barr at a celebration in St. Louis — with gifts not pop bottles. . . And the arbiters in the recent A. A. all-star game were given presents, same as the players. . .

If the Reds win the pennant some of Cincinnati's rabid fans will have the experience of watching a world series game while sitting over traffic. . . Some of the

Two Other Divisions Lined Up By Bowman To Provide Competition

Pickaway Country Club golfers were preparing Saturday for first round competition in the club's annual championship tournament. The title of champion is now held by Willis Liston, E. Main street, who played superior golf last fall to knock off the trophy. . .

Liston plans to defend his title, but is promised much close competition from several golfers who have been turning in scores in the low 80's. The champion, too, has been carding some near-par figures and is given a good chance to go far in the tournament. . .

The first round must be played by Aug. 14, Bill Bowman, club professional, declared Saturday. The first golfer named in the following pairings is responsible for arranging his match, Bowman said. The pairings are:

Championship Flight

Liston vs. Sibrel; J. P. Noecker vs. Carruth; John Eshelman vs. Berthold; Hatcher vs. John Mader; John Jenkins vs. Claude Kraft; G. D. Phillips vs. T. O. Gilliland; Dr. Coers vs. N. E. Reichelderfer; John Taggart vs. Bob Friece. . .

Second Division

Charles Glitt vs. Bill Crist; C. R. Barnhart vs. A. L. Wilder; George Myers vs. Bill Friece; Gib Hill vs. C. A. Armstrong; Workman vs. Bob Hillard; John Haney vs. George Armstrong; Brombacher vs. Dr. Grattidge; Lester Reid vs. C. T. Gilmore. . .

Third Division

F. E. Barnhill vs. M. D. Clayton; Waltz vs. E. W. Lutz; George Speakman vs. Bill Radloff; Joe Doyle vs. Herb Smith; Dr. Stewart vs. Max Friedman; John Clifton vs. McRoberts; Dr. Gardner vs. Paul Wallace. . .

seats which would be added to Crosey field would extend over a street which passes the ball park. . .

Modern pitchers are getting an other rap from an old-timer—Chief Bender. . . The old Philadelphia Athletics mound star says pitchers of today should sweat their ailments instead of taking protracted layoffs. . .

A lot of the boys think the Giants certainly pulled a bloomer when they let Max Butcher get away from the Phillies to the Pirates. . . The Terrymen need pitchers, good pitchers, to a greater extent than any other major club. . .

The influence of the comic strips can be seen in the nicknames of two current big leaguers. . . Flash Gordon won his nom de plume from the Sunday adventure page of the same name, while Boob McNair can thank Rube Goldberg's Boob McNutt for his nickname. . .

Sportsman's park, St. Louis, has the only shoe shining stand in a major league park. . . It probably was installed so fans of the Browns could come away from a game with some benefit to show for the afternoon. . .

Unless you are a really big boy your chances of becoming a National leaguer aren't so good. . . More than half of the regular players in the senior circuit are six-footers or better. . .

Syracuse and Penn State Two of the most improved football teams in the east next autumn will be Syracuse and Penn State. . . At least, that's the opinion of Sleepy Jim Crowley, the Fordham coach. . .

Clark Griffith, the "Old Fox" of baseball, shows he still knows his ball players. . . The Washington owner sent Pitcher Robert Ortiz to the Charlotte Piedmont league club and told them he wanted Ortiz to be trained as an outfielder. . . Now Roberto has become the slugging king of the league. . .

When the nag you bet on gets nicked at the wire on a big stake race the owner is plenty sorrier than you. . . It is estimated the entry fees and the feed, transportation and training bills of a good three-year-old total $7,500 for the year. . .

These can't be such bad times after all—considering that terrific play by the punters at Arlington (Chicago). . . The mutuels showed $737,591 bet on a single day's card of eight races! . .

Jap Sports Hard Hit Japanese athletes are feeling the hardship of war due to the shortage of rubber. . . In league baseball games the torn balls are patched and continue in use. . . Tennis players are limited to the use of one ball per match. . .

Passeau, Others Stellar In Major League Jousts

NEW YORK, Aug. 5—If the Chicago Cubs had more mound workers like Claude Passeau, big right-hander acquired from the Philadelphia Phillies early in the season, they might be in better position today to repeat in the National League pennant race. . .

Passeau turned in his brightest pitching job of the season yesterday when he set back the Boston Bees with four hits, 1 to 0. Passeau fanned five bees and gave no passes in blanking the Beantowners for his ninth triumph of the year. . .

Lou Fette gave Passeau plenty of opposition, scattering eight hits and being vulnerable only in the third inning when the Cubs put across the lone run of the contest. Stanley Hack walked, was sent to third by Billy Herman's single and crossed the plate on a sacrifice fly by Augie Galan. . .

The Bees complained three times that the cagey Passeau was using the illegal spit-ball and Claude

Elijah: A Life of Courage

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 6 is I Kings 18:1-46, the 15:29. "The Lord is far from the wicked; but He heareth the Golden Text being Proverbs the prayer of the righteous.")

TODAY'S LESSON is about Elijah—the prophet whose courage and faith in God were very strong. He lived in the day of the wicked king, Ahab, who was one of the worst kings of Israel and whose wife, Jezebel, also was a bad person. Both worshiped Baal instead of Jehovah.

Because of his wickedness, Elijah stood before Ahab and told him that there would be no more rain or dew for as many years as he (Elijah) said. That made Ahab very angry, of course, and the Lord told Elijah to flee and hide himself by the brook called Cherith, and to drink of the water of the brook and He would send the ravens to feed him. Elijah did as he was told, and sure enough the ravens came at morning and night with meat and bread for him.

When the stream went dry, the Lord told Elijah to go to the gate of a certain city and he would meet a widow woman who would give him food. Sure enough, when Elijah arrived at the city gate he saw a poor woman gathering sticks to make a fire. He told her she was to give him food, but she said she hardly had enough for herself and son. The prophet told her not to fear, for there surely would be plenty for all. So she shared what she had with him, and there was plenty of food for many days.

Child Becomes Ill

Then the widow's son was taken ill and apparently died, and she was very much distressed, as you may imagine, and felt maybe it was Elijah's fault. "What have I to do with thee, O man of God?" she said to him; "art thou come unto me to call my son to remembrance, and to slay my son?"

Elijah took the child from his mother and carried him to his own room, and there he pleaded with God to restore the child. Then he spread his body over the child's three times and prayed, and life came again to the boy and Elijah gave him again to his mother.

Then word came to Elijah that he should go back to Ahab, and the Lord would send rain to the earth, for there was grievous drouth and famine in the land. It took courage for Elijah to go back and face the king, who was very angry with him because of the drouth and famine. However, he did as the Lord bid him. Now Obadiah, governor of Ahab's house, "eared the Lord greatly," and when the wicked Jezebel would have killed all the prophets of the Lord, he took 100 of them and hid them in a cave. Ahab bid Obadiah to take one section of the land and visit all the brooks and springs and find if perchance one still had a little water in it to keep some of the livestock from perishing, and he would visit others. On his journey Obadiah met Elijah, who said to him, "Go tell thy lord, do. Elijah is here." Poor Obadiah was afraid to do this, as he knew how angry Ahab was with Elijah and he reminded the prophets and he thought this was a poor way to reward him, as he was sure Ahab would kill him if he mentioned Elijah.

King Meets Elijah

Elijah promised to appear personally before Ahab, and so Obadiah overcame his fear and went to meet the king and tell him of Elijah. When Ahab saw Elijah he growled, "Is it thou, thou troubler not he, Elijah, but rather the king, by his ungodly ways, that had brought all the trouble on his people. Then he told the king to gather all the priests of Baal and tell them to prepare two bullocks for an offering, one for themselves and one for him.

All the people were summoned, and two altars built. On one Baal's priests laid their offerings, and on the other Elijah laid his, and he dug a trench around his altar. The priests of Baal called unto their god from morning until noon, but nothing happened. Then Elijah mocked them. And when the evening came he told the people to bring water and three times he poured it over the bullock and the wood on top of the altar, and in the trench, until all was soaked, and then he called on the Lord to end fire to consume it.

Such a fierce fire descended from on high that the wood, the bullock, even the stones and the water were consumed or dried up in the heat. Then all the people fell upon their faces and said, "The Lord, He is the God," and Elijah told them to slay every one of the prophets of Baal.

Then he told Ahab to rise, eat and drink, for there was a sound of abundant rain. And Elijah went to the top of armel and cast himself down upon the earth knees, telling his servant to look and put his face between his toward the sea. The servant saw nothing, and Elijah told him to look again, even seven times. At the seventh time there was a small cloud, which quickly grew larger until the "heaven was black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain."

But Jezebel was so infuriated at the slaughter of the priests of Baal that she would have killed Elijah, so that he was obliged to again flee for his life.

Elijah: A Life of Courage

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—I Kings 18:1-46.

Because Ahab was a wicked king and worshiped Baal with his wife, Jezebel, Elijah, the prophet, told him there would be no "dew nor rain these years," which caused a famine.

Then the Lord told Elijah to flee and hide himself by a certain brook, drink of the waters of the brook, and He, the Lord, would command the ravens to feed him.

When the brook dried up, Elijah was directed to go to the city and a widow woman would care for him; she did, and when her son apparently died, Elijah was able to restore him.

Then Elijah went back to Ahab and challenged the priests of Baal to bring fire from heaven to burn their sacrifices; they failed but Elijah triumphed. (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 15:29.)

Elijah: A Life of Courage
HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Aug. 6 is 1 Kings 18:1-46, the 15:28. "The Lord is far from the wicked; but He heareth the prayer of the righteous.")

TODAY'S LESSON is about Elijah the prophet whose courage and faith in God were very strong. He lived in the day of the wicked king, Ahab, who was one of the worst kings of Israel and whose wife, Jezebel also was a bad person. Both worshiped Baal instead of Jehovah.

Because of his wickedness, Elijah stood before Ahab and told him that there would be no more rain or dew for as many years as he (Elijah) said. That made Ahab very angry, of course, and the Lord told Elijah to flee and hide himself by the brook called Cherith, and to drink of the water of the brook and He would send the ravens to feed him. Elijah did as he was told, and sure enough the ravens came at morning and night with meat and bread for him.

When the stream went dry, the Lord told Elijah to go to the gate of a certain city and he would meet a widow woman who would give him food. Sure enough, when Elijah arrived at the city gate he saw a poor woman gathering sticks to make a fire. He told her she was to give him food, but she said she hardly had enough for herself and son. The prophet told her not to fear, for there surely would be plenty for all. So she shared what she had with him, and there was plenty of food for many days.

Child Becomes Ill
Then the widow's son was taken ill and apparently died, and she was very much distressed, as you may imagine, and felt maybe it was Elijah's fault. "What have I to do with thee, O man of God?" she said to him; "art thou come unto me to call my son to remembrance, and to slay my son?"

Elijah took the child from his mother and carried him to his own room, and there he pleaded with God to restore the child. Then he spread his body over the child's three times and prayed, and life came again to the boy and Elijah gave him again to his mother.

Then word came to Elijah that he should go back to Ahab, and the Lord would send rain to the earth, for there was grievous drouth and famine in the land. It took courage for Elijah to go back and face the king, who was very angry with him because of the drouth and famine. However, he did as the Lord bid him. Now Obadiah, governor of Ahab's house, "eared the Lord greatly," and when the wicked Jezebel would have killed all the prophets of the Lord, he took 100 of them and hid them in a cave. Ahab bid Obadiah to take one section of the land and visit all the brooks and springs and find if perchance one still had a little water in it to keep some of the livestock from perishing, and he would visit others. On his journey Obadiah met Elijah, who said to him. "Go tell thy lord, do. Elijah is here." Poor Obadiah was afraid to do this, as he knew how angry Ahab was with Elijah and he reminded Elijah that he had hidden the prophets and he thought this was a poor way to reward him, as he was sure Ahab would kill him if he mentioned Elijah.

King Meets Elijah
Elijah promised to appear personally before Ahab, and so Obadiah overcame his fear and went to meet the king and tell him of Elijah. When Ahab saw Elijah he growled, "Is it thou, thou troubler not he, Elijah, but rather the king, by his ungodly ways, that had brought all the trouble on his people. Then he told the king to gather all the priests of Baal and tell them to prepare two bullocks for an offering, one for themselves and one for him.

All the people were summoned, and two altars built. On one Baal's priests laid their offerings, and on the other Elijah laid his, and he dug a trench around his altar. The priests of Baal called unto their god from morning until noon, but nothing happened. Then Elijah mocked them. And when the evening came he told the people to bring water and three times he poured it over the bullock and the wood on top of the altar, and in the trench, until all was soaked, and then he called on the Lord to end fire to consume it.

Such a fierce fire descended from on high that the wood, the bullock, even the stones and the water were consumed or dried up in the heat. Then all the people fell upon their faces and said, "The Lord, He is the God," and Elijah told them to slay every one of the prophets of Baal.

Then he told Ahab to rise, eat and drink, for there was a sound of abundant rain. And Elijah went to the top of armel and cast himself down upon the earth knees, telling his servant to look and put his face between his toward the sea. The servant saw nothing, and Elijah told him to look again, even seven times. At the seventh time there was a small cloud, which quickly grew larger until the "heaven was black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain."

But Jezebel was so infuriated at the slaughter of the priests of Baal that she would have killed Elijah, so that he was obliged to again flee for his life.

Scripture—1 Kings 18:1-46.
Because Ahab was a wicked king and worshiped Baal with his wife, Jezebel, Elijah, the prophet, told him there would be no "dew nor rain these years," which caused a famine.
Then the Lord told Elijah to flee and hide himself by a certain brook, drink of the waters of the brook, and He, the Lord, would command the ravens to feed him.
When the brook dried up, Elijah was directed to go to the city and a widow woman would care for him; she did, and when her son apparently died, Elijah was able to restore him.
Then Elijah went back to Ahab and challenged the priests of Baal to bring fire from heaven to burn their sacrifices; they failed but Elijah triumphed. (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 15:29.)

DICTATOR'S JOB NO SNAP

BOOTH TARKINGTON, just turned seventy, has the same natal day as Benito Mussolini. The latter, however, is only 56, which might be considered an enviable advantage.

Mussolini was at one time an editor and publisher and has written a number of books. Even though he is now somewhat subdued by the rising power of his axis partner, Mussolini is still master of the Italian people.

Tarkington's following is composed only of friends and the many readers of his books. His power is merely the power to delight and entertain. He does not try to instruct. Yet Tarkington says he would not for any reason exchange places with Mussolini.

It's easy to believe that Mussolini would be glad to change places, perhaps not with Tarkington, but certainly with some lesser Italian who is not "on the spot", and will not be, as Il Duce now finds himself.

ROAD MILES

THE state of Pennsylvania reports ninety miles of new highway completed so far this year. Time was, and not so many centuries ago, when that would have been an achievement for the country as a whole. Now it is just a minor detail in a six month's report from one state out of the forty-eight. Undoubtedly higher than the average of highway building, taking the states as they come, with their differing needs, it is still just ninety miles. Laid in one road, three hours would see any motorist over its entire length, with time out for gas and a sandwich.

Ninety miles with a horse and buggy was a three day journey—and more than that usually, because ninety miles of good road all in a line were too much to hope for. Now a motorist can go from one World's Fair to the other and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, with hardly a stretch off pavement.

LIGHT OR DARK?

DR. WILLIAM MOULTON MARSTON, called one of America's popular psychologists, says in an article in the August issue of "Your Life" that men do not prefer blondes but brunettes.

Anita Loos sticks to her guns and says blondes remain the more popular.

This is one of those serious disagreements which seem to be characteristic of the current month of August. World-shaking, isn't it?

But judging from the society columns of our favorite newspaper and a few others, it looks as if the controversy could be simply settled. The evidence seems to indicate that, when you get right down to it:

Men prefer both.

Frank Lynch carries a pocketpiece a beer check from one of the ville's early saloons. It was not so long ago that Father Herman found a beer check in the church collection box and was anything except pleased. Frank heard about it, missed his check, called on the Father, told him he thought he was giving a quarter and then redeemed the check for 50 cents. Not so long after that Father Herman met Frank in the Third bank, walked up and demanded 50 cents. Frank produced and once more redeemed his pocket piece. Now, Frank leaves the check at home on Sunday.

In the afternoon did attend the Nail Keg Derby staged on the hill alongside High street school. Seemed as though most of the kids in town were there, including Jim Swearingen, Leslie May, Louie Vining. And a fine show it was. Those youngsters took the contest seriously. Roaring down the straightaway at something like six miles an hour they did everything to increase the speed of their vehicles. Along the sidelines the younger beauties cheered on their favorites. All in all it was a good show, one that should have been attended by more folk. Could not help but give thought to the hours and hours spent by those boys in building their cars.

Junior Geib, son of the editor of these prints, was the victor, coming from behind in the last hundred feet to get the checkered flag by a radiator cap. One crack-up featured the main event, but the driver escaped with no more serious injury than hurt feelings.

MERRY-GO-ROUND ACTS AS GUIDE

WASHINGTON—An adjourning Congress is like a sailor on a spree—noisy, truculent, unmanageable. It satisfies no one except possibly the gallery fans and sightseers who jam the great domed Capitol to see the riotous show.

This is harvest time for the Capitol guides, who lead the goggle-eyed flocks of visitors up and down the marble corridors—a mother from Butte with a babe in arms, a boy scout troop from Fond du Lac, a bride and groom, oldsters, youngsters, city folks and farm folks.

With mouths agape and craning necks, they listen to the machine-gun patter of the guides, the chaotic clatter of the wrangling Senators and Congressmen, and the banging of the gavels of the presiding officers who vainly try to keep order among the squalling members.

The guides reel off a routine travelogue that they have memorized. It is chiefly historical and steps on no toes, past or present. But if they could talk off the record and tell what is going on under the Dome, then their flocks really would be pop-eyed. Here's a sample of the comment if The Merry-Go-Round were the guide on a Capitol tour:

DELIRIUM TREMENS

"This, ladies and gentlemen, is the great rotunda of the Capitol. It is 98 feet, 8 inches in diameter, and rises more than 183 feet to the central dome. The paintings and sculpture arrayed before you once caused Mark Twain to exclaim, 'What delirium tremens of art!' and Senator Charles Sumner to complain on the Senate floor that the rule to bar bad art from the Capitol had been 'too often forgotten'.

"You are now standing on the very spot where stood the King and Queen of England, on Congressman Sol Bloom's private carpet. It was here also that Congressman Nat Patton of Texas addressed them as 'Cousin George' and 'Cousin Elizabeth'. To those who know Nat Patton intimately, that was not surprising. He is very relation-conscious, having three relatives on the federal payroll.

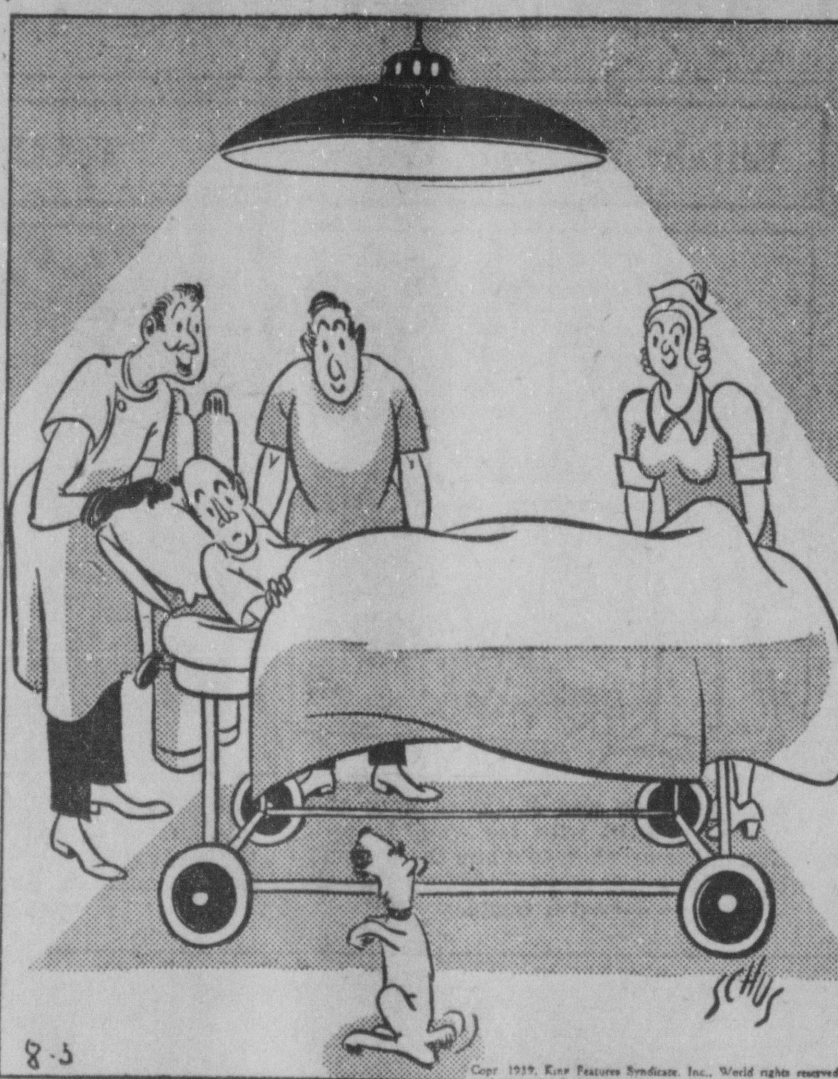

"Now we enter Statuary Hall, which served as the Representatives' Chamber until 1857. For seven years thereafter the hall was empty, except for 'cobwebs, apple cores, and hucksters' carts'. One Congressman complained about the state of the place, saying 'I look around to see the venerable John Quincy Adams trampled in his seat, and I see a huckster selling ginger bread; I look to see where Clay sat, and I find a woman selling oranges and root beer'.

"Now, folks, we pass the very spot where Congressman Martin Dies of Texas once stood when he took up a collection for 'the wife of the Unknown Soldier'. Martin, by the way, is about to resume his un-Americanism investigation. He has been out romping about the country making speeches about what a great man he is, but now that Congress is winding up, he will return to start up his show without competition from the main circus.

No Need For Alarm If Child Swallows Pebble

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

AS THE SUMMER swells into its full diapason, the recurrent question will be asked, and asked excitedly, wherever vacationers assemble, wherever pebbles are, where very little children develop both hunger and curiosity at the same time:

"What to do with the kid who has swallowed a pebble?"

The answer, I regret to say, is very simple. The answer is, "Nothing."

My regret at the simplicity of the answer is based on the fact that I have found that such an answer generates no confidence. For some reason, or reasons, the doctor who recommends "nothing" creates a dissatisfaction in the patient or the relatives of the patient, which it takes hours to overcome. Sometimes years.

Parents Feel Cheated
They feel that they have been cheated. In the case of the swallowed pebble, they have called into their household, in a moment of great emotional stress, a renowned and learned man. They have anxiously and logically explained their troubles. They are willing to do anything—anything—to relieve their mental distress. And all the distinguished specialist says is, "Do nothing."

Futile for the illustrious practitioner, who has a full set of shiny surgical instruments just around the corner and would be perfectly willing to satisfy the yearnings that possess the little assembly for as dramatic and expensive a modus operandi as they consider the circumstances require—futile for him to explain that he has had experience with cases of this kind, and that the pebble always passes. It passes in four days.

After Four Days—the X-ray
If in four days watchful and disciplined waiting has failed to note the passing of the pebble, time enough then to take an X-ray and discover if it is anywhere in the interior.

Futile for him even to recall a particular case of a little girl in the neighborhood, even giving her name and her father's occupation in order to furnish corroborative detail for purposes of verisimilitude—to whom this very event occurred, and in spite of the apprehension of her parents, the pebble passed exactly on schedule—in four days.

Despite all his efforts, a painful air of mistrust is apparent. About this time, after a whispered conference, a question is ventured, to-wit: "How do you know the pebble isn't too large to pass?"

The answer is, "If it was small enough to go down it will be small enough to pass through."

Castor Oil? Well—Yes
Another suggestion will almost inevitably be made at this moment by one of the cooler heads.

"How about a good dose of castor oil?"

It is sound practice to accede to this. It makes the child uncomfortable and theoretically inculcates the lesson that pebble-swallowing should not be considered as a career. And it satisfies those who feel that something ought to be done. So we will amend the answer to:

"Nothing but castor oil."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
A. W. M.: "I am 23 years of age and in good health. I have become very much troubled over the fact that lately my finger-nails have become brittle and crumble off at the slightest provocation. Can you tell what is the cause of this and how it can be remedied?"

Answer—The cause of brittle finger-nails is usually infection of the nail beds. The commonest form of infection is from a fungus, ringworm. The use of parasitocidal ointments, tincture of iodine and X-ray are the treatments of choice.

Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
LORENA HAMILTON, in the desert country of Arizona, to visit her uncle, meets SHOT ROGERS, one of the Phantom Ranch cowboys at the railroad station.
JERRY DALE, college bred, is a newcomer to Phantom Ranch, who has corresponded with Lorena.

CHAPTER EIGHT
NOON HAD slipped into the rolling green valley there before anybody quite realized it, so intent had the conversation been. A fat Mexican woman waddled around the outside of the ranch home and brought the first realization of time.

"Has all these seniores to be fix for dinner?" she asked of Mrs. Brazee, indicating the 20-odd riders there.

Sally Brazee almost blushed. She had been negligent as housewife and hostess.

"Why—why, yes! Yes, Concha, these men must be starved! My goodness, George, whatever are you doing, sitting there on your horse like a wart! Get these men down and washed up and rested, and let me feed them!"

Sally Brazee ran back into the house and George swung down from his saddle. The other men dismounted, getting and needing no further invitation. They had just been shown a discourtesy; they had just been in earnest discussion. They knew, of course, that they were welcome at the Phantom, that they would be fed as long as a bite of victuals remained.

Two of the Phantom cowboys, aided by Midnight, took all the mounts to the corral for watering and feeding, and the men proceeded to a second watering trough that extended 40 feet from the base of a windmill tower. Lorena was deeply interested. With Jerry Dale near her, she walked beside George Brazee.

"Uncle George, I must say or do something to thank all these men," she began, "but I don't quite know how to do it, and—"

Not George, but another rancher interrupted.

"Don't try it, little miss," he commanded, smiling. "We don't need it. Anyway, we didn't do anything. It was young Dale here who became the hero. Look at him grin!"

All eyes turned on Jerry and some of the men smiled at him. Shot Rogers did not smile. In all the talk that morning Shot had observed a detail the others hadn't noticed. The story of discovering and bringing Lorena safely in, as told by Lorena, hadn't jibed exactly with the story Jerry told. Jerry's version made himself considerably more important in the process.

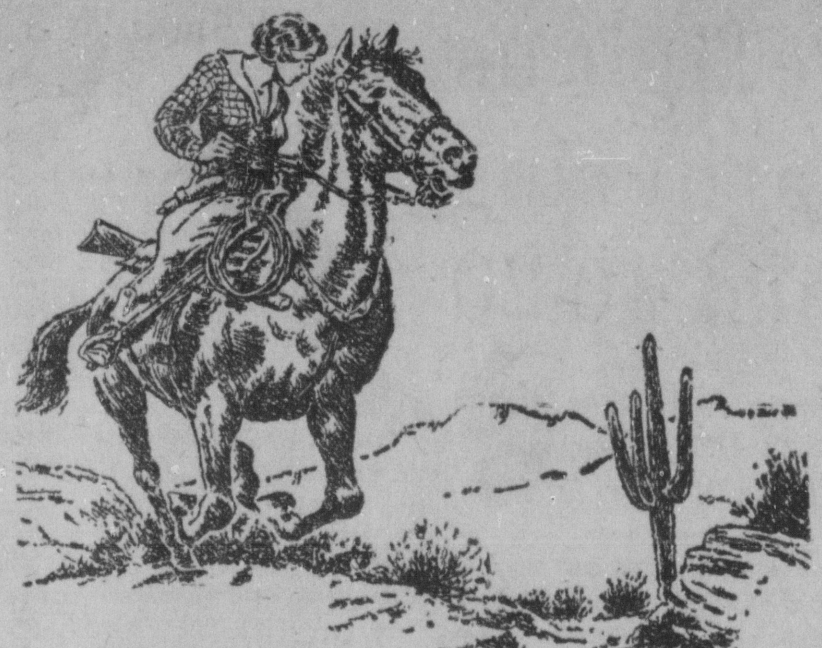

It was too trivial to notice much, Shot Rogers reasoned. And yet he didn't like Jerry Dale. In common with all the Phantom cowboys, with whom he was friendly, Shot just couldn't "cotton to" the handsome young college graduate who had come to the Brazee home two years ago and set up for scientific studies. They admitted his abilities in some lines; they hoped his tests for improving range cattle would be successful; but they didn't like him personally.

Lorena moved near Shot as they walked and thanked him again for lending her his horse and pistol the day before.

"I shall replace the pistol as soon as I get a chance to buy one," she declared. "The Mexicans took it and the cartridge belt."

"Skip that," Shot said. "I hope it goes off and splatters them." "Are you that bloodthirsty, sir?" she laughed with him then.

The group had come to the windmill—the wheel high above was clink-clanking rather merrily in the noon breeze—and Lorena soon had her curiosity about the expedition satisfied. Matter-of-factly, the ranchmen propped their hats on mother earth, pushed up sleeves, and with only casual comments plunged in to wash.

Lorena marvelled at the scenic beauty all around her.

"Sploo-o-o-o-o!" one man sounded off, through the double handfull he had dashed on his face. Others followed. A hearty splooting and rubbing and scrubbing occupied them, Shot Rogers joining it. Only she and Jerry Dale held back, Lorena noted. She was highly amused at it all, but tactfully said nothing.

Cleaned of visible dirt, and immensely refreshed, the men moved one by one to the two-inch pipe from which pumped water cascaded into the trough. Each stuck his mouth into the stream, drinking copiously. Next they slung off any loose water, finger-combed their hair, replaced hats and served notice—by their expectant manner—that they were ready for grub whenever grub was ready for them. George Brazee led the procession back to the house, a good hundred yards.

"Isn't Uncle George handsome?" Lorena murmured to Shot Rogers then, from the rear. "He walks like a—white-haired god or something."

"George Brazee is a thoroughbred," Shot declared. "Men in Arizona will swear by him, ma'am. They hate to see him in trouble."

"Trouble's not much," Jerry Dale put in. "Bunch of Mex rustlers is all. We can bat down their ears shortly."

"I ain't so—I'm not so sure," Shot Rogers declared. "Being on the international line this way, the Phantom ranch invites thieves, renegades, scum of all sort to slip over and take cattle. Cattle are food. Luis Escobar is building himself a new army. Mexico and Washington, D. C., aren't diplomat' so friendly of late, as you know, ma'am. We would be insignificant in their eyes, and they wouldn't want to recognize any little trouble we complained of. But if we say, 'shayed across the line on a gunning spree, we'd darn sure hear from that quick! It's what disturbs your Uncle George and I don't blame him.'"

"Nuts," said Jerry Dale. "All right, how about you doing—"

Shot Rogers had been about to "sass" back at Jerry with a challenge, but Mrs. Brazee interrupted them. She called from the porch.

"If you'll put up with just plain food, gentlemen, I'm ready," she said. Then she apologized further: "I was got that distracted today I never got my cooking begun right, but we can do better for supper."

Any other woman anywhere—except a farm woman or a ranch woman—would have been floored by the necessity of feeding 20 hungry male guests on half an hour's notice. But Sally Brazee had three Mexican servants. And being isolated, she had to keep abundant stores on hand. Sally loved to can things—tomatoes from the little patch irrigated by waste from the windmill; wild plums from a canyon two miles away; almost a whole yearling that was accidentally killed near the house three months ago, the meat tender and red and already cooked in its jars, needing only to be warmed; shelf after shelf of jelly; gallons of wild grape juice which made a delicious drink even though un-iced; pears and peaches and apricots, and several crocks of cactus fruit "jam" brought in by friendly Indian women. In the smokehouse, too, were hams and bacon and jerky and potatoes and home-made hominy.

Bread consisted of tray after tray of hot biscuits which kept pouring from the big ranch ovens even as the men ate. And half an hour had been time enough to boil a veritable wasteful full of coffee. Lorena had eaten earlier, and so while the men overflew the great dining room into the living room (around Sally's hastily covered rustic table there) she walked outside alone, found a horse and decided to investigate the ranch by herself.

Lorena rode for a half hour, marveling at the scenic beauty all about her, then returned to the house for a close inspection of her uncle's home.

Phantom ranch headquarters backed up against a steep rock butters nearly 300 feet high. In front sprawled a highly picturesque valley of perhaps 25 acres. From this front porch of the main house, the valley appeared to be hemmed in by other mountains and cliffs, but distant shadow cracks Lorena knew would be exits to other valley and slopes where cattle could graze. The main house itself was built of native rock, about 10 rooms sprawling happily around in no architectural pattern. The porch was a wide expanse roofed by thatched logs and with log posts. On the posts numerous limbs had been left as foot-long stubs as a convenience for hanging bridles, hats, gloves, spurs and such. Most of the posts looked like hat trees now, Lorena observed.

She was studying these strange but fascinating details which were so unlike her Kentucky surroundings when big Jerry Dale swaggered outside to join her. He took his hat—far and above the cleanest one—tightened the leather thong of it, military fashion under his chin, and smiled at the new girl.

"Say, kid," he began, rather cockily, "you wanta rest up as fast as you can. You're gonna have me hanging around! We got to go places and see things. And listen—if any of these dim-witted mugs try hawking in, why, I got what it takes!"

By way of demonstration, he flexed his right arm so that a powerful biceps muscle bulged there. Lorena didn't quite know what to make of him.

Dictator's Job No Snap

BOOOTH TARKINGTON, just turned seventy, has the same natal day as Benito Mussolini. The latter, however, is only 56, which might be considered an enviable advantage.

Mussolini was at one time an editor and publisher and has written a number of books. Even though he is now somewhat subdued by the rising power of his axis partner, Mussolini is still master of the Italian people.

Tarkington's following is composed only of friends and the many readers of his books. His power is merely the power to delight and entertain. He does not try to instruct. Yet Tarkington says he would not for any reason exchange places with Mussolini.

It's easy to believe that Mussolini would be glad to change places, perhaps not with Tarkington, but certainly with some lesser Italian who is not "on the spot", and will not be, as Il Duce now finds himself.

ROAD MILES

THE state of Pennsylvania reports ninety miles of new highway completed so far this year. Time was, and not so many centuries ago, when that would have been an achievement for the country as a whole. Now it is just a minor detail in a six month's report from one state out of the forty-eight. Undoubtedly higher than the average of highway building, taking the states as they come, with their differing needs, it is still just ninety miles. Laid in one road, three hours would see any motorist over its entire length, with time out for gas and a sandwich.

Ninety miles with a horse and buggy was a three day journey—and more than that usually, because ninety miles of good road all in a line were too much to hope for. Now a motorist can go from one World's Fair to the other and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, with hardly a stretch off pavement.

DR. WILLIAM MOULTON MARSTON, called one of America's popular psychologists, says in an article in the August issue of "Your Life" that men do not prefer blondes but brunettes.

Anita Loos sticks to her guns and says blondes remain the more popular.

This is one of those serious disagreements which seem to be characteristic of the current month of August. World-shaking, isn't it?

But judging from the society columns of our favorite newspaper and a few others, it looks as if the controversy could be simply settled. The evidence seems to indicate that, when you get right down to it:

Men prefer both.

Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

LORENA HAMILTON, in the desert country of Arizona, to visit her uncle, meets SHOT ROGERS, one of the Phantom ranch cowboys at the railroad station. JERRY DALE, college bred, is a newcomer to Phantom ranch, who has corresponded with Lorena.

YESTERDAY: Lorena finally reaches Phantom ranch, her destination. Her uncle is convinced the Mexicans who tried to kidnap her belong to the band of Luis Escobar, a revolutionary, who has been stealing his cattle.

CHAPTER EIGHT

NOON HAD slipped into the rolling green valley there before anybody quite realized it, so intent had the conversation been. A fat Mexican woman waddled around the outside of the ranch home and brought the first realization of time.

"Iss all thees senores to be fix for dinner?" she asked of Mrs. Brazee, indicating the 20-odd riders there.

Sally Brazee almost blushed. She had been negligent as housewife and hostess.

"Why—why, yes! Yes, Concha, these men must be starved! My goodness, George, whatever are you doing, sitting there on your horse like a wart! Get these men down and washed up and rested, and let me feed them!"

Sally Brazee ran back into the house and George swung down from his saddle. The other men dismounted, getting and needing no further invitation. They hadn't been shown a discourtesy; they had just been in earnest discussion. They knew, of course, that they were welcome at the Phantom, that they would be fed as long as a bite of victuals remained.

Two of the Phantom cowboys, aided by Midnight, took all the mounts to the corral for watering and feeding, and the men proceeded to a second watering trough that extended 40 feet from the base of a windmill tower. Lorena was deeply interested. With Jerry Dale near her, she walked beside George Brazee.

"Uncle George, I must say or do something to thank all these men," she began, "but I don't quite know how to do it, and—"

Not George, but another rancher interrupted.

"Don't try it, little miss," he commanded, smiling. "We don't need it. nyway, we didn't do anything. It was young Dale here who became the hero. Look at him grin!"

All eyes turned on Jerry and some of the men smiled at him. Shot Rogers did not smile. In all the talk that morning Shot had observed a detail the others hadn't noticed.

The story of discovering and bringing Lorena safely in, as told by Lorena, hadn't jibed exactly with the story Jerry told. Jerry's version made himself considerably more important in the process.

It was too trivial to notice much, Shot Rogers reasoned. And yet he didn't like Jerry Dale. In common with all the Phantom cowboys, with whom he was friendly, Shot just couldn't "tolon to" the handsome young college graduate who had come to the Brazee home two years ago and set up for scientific studies. They admitted his abilities in some lines; they hoped his tests for improving range cattle would be successful; but they didn't like him personally.

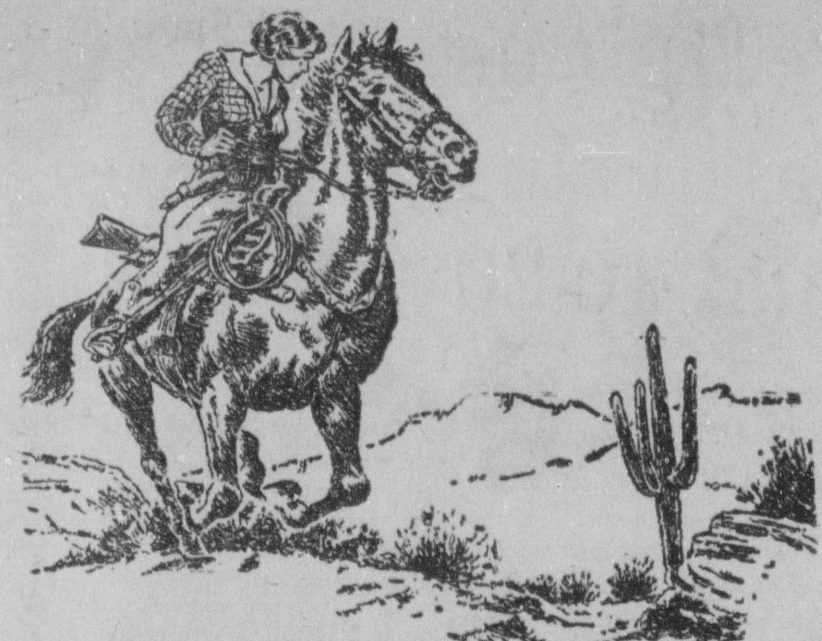

Lorena moved near Shot as they walked and thanked him again for lending her his horse and pistol the day before.

"I shall replace the pistol as soon as I get a chance to buy one," she declared. "The Mexicans took it and the cartridge belt."

"Skip that," Shot said. "I hope it goes off and splatters them."

"Are you that bloodthirsty, sir?" she laughed with him then.

The group had come to the windmill—the wheel high above was clink-clanking rather merrily in the noon breeze—and Lorena soon had her curiosity about the expedition satisfied. Matter-of-factly, the ranchmen propped their hats on mother earth, pushed up sleeves, and with only casual comments plunged in to wash.

Lorena marvelled at the scenic beauty all around her.

"Sploo-o-o-o-o!" one man sounded off, through the double handful he had dashed on his face. Others followed. A hearty splooting and rubbing and scrubbing occupied them, Shot Rogers joining in. Only she and Jerry Dale held back, Lorena noted. She was highly amused at it all, but tactfully said nothing.

Cleansed of visible dirt, and immensely refreshed, the men moved one by one to the two-inch pipe from which pumped water cascaded into the trough. Each stuck his mouth into the stream, drinking copiously. Next they slung off any loose water, finger-combed their hair, replaced hats and served notice—by their expectant manner—that they were ready for grub whenever grub was ready for them. George Brazee led the procession back to the house, a good hundred yards.

"Isn't Uncle George handsome?" Lorena murmured to Shot Rogers then, from the rear. "He walks like a—a white-haired god or something."

"George Brazee is a thoroughbred," Shot declared. "Men in Arizona will swear by him, ma'am. They hate to see him in trouble."

"Trouble's not much," Jerry Dale put in. "Bunch of Mex rustlers is all. We can bat down their ears shortly."

"I ain't so—I'm not so sure," Shot Rogers declared. "Being on the international line this way, the Phantom ranch invites thieves, renegades, scum of all sort to slip over and take cattle. Cattle are food. Luis Escobar is building himself a new army. Mexico and Washington, D. C., aren't diplomat' so friendly of late, as you know, ma'am. We would be insignificant in their eyes, and they wouldn't want to recognize any little trouble we complained of. But if we sa-shayed across the line on a gunning spree, we'd darn sure hear from that quick! It's what disturbs you, Uncle George and I don't blame him."

"Nuts," said Jerry Dale. "All right, how about you doing—"

Shot Rogers had been about to "sass" back at Jerry with a challenge, but Mrs. Brazee interrupted them. She called from the porch.

"If you'll put up with just plain food, gentlemen, I'm ready," she said. Then she apologized further: "I was that distracted today I never got my cooking begun right, but we can do better for supper."

Any other woman anywhere—except a farm woman or a ranch woman—would have been floored by the necessity of feeding 20 hungry male guests on half an hour's notice. But Sally Brazee had three Mexican servants. And being isolated, she had to keep abundant stores on hand. Sally loved to can things—tomatoes from the little patch irrigated by waste from the windmill; wild plums from a canyon two miles away; almost a whole yearling that was accidentally killed near the house three months ago, the meat tender and red and already cooked in its jars, needing only to be warmed; shelf after shelf of jelly; gallons of wild grape juice which made a delicious drink even though un-iced; pears and peaches and apricots, and several crocks of cactus fruit "jam" brought in by friendly Indian women. In the smokehouse, too, were hams and bacon and jerky and potatoes and home-made hominy.

Bread consisted of tray after tray of hot biscuits which kept pouring from the big ranch ovens even as the men ate. And half an hour had been time enough to boil a veritable washtub full of coffee. Lorena had eaten earlier, and so while the men overflowed the great dining room into the living room (around Sally's hastily covered rustic table there) she walked outside alone, found a horse and decided to investigate the ranch by herself.

Lorena rode for a half hour, marveling at the scenic beauty all about her, then returned to the house for a close inspection of her uncle's home.

Phantom ranch headquarters backed up against a steep rock buttress nearly 800 feet high. In front sprawled a highly picturesque valley of perhaps 25 acres. From this front porch of the main house, the valley appeared to be hemmed in by other mountains and cliffs, but distant shadow cracks Lorena knew would be exits to other valleys and slopes where cattle could graze. The main home itself was built of native rock, about 10 rooms sprawling happily around in no architectural pattern. The porch was a wide expanse roofed by thatched logs and with log posts. On the posts numerous limbs had been left as foot-long stubs as a convenience for hanging bridles, hats, gloves, spurs and such. Most of the posts looked like hat trees now, Lorena observed.

She was studying these strange but fascinating details which were so unlike her Kentucky surroundings when big Jerry Dale swaggered outside to join her. He took his hat—far and above the cleanest one—tightened the leather thong of it military fashion under his chin, and smiled at the new girl.

"Say, kid," he began, rather cockily, "you wanta rest up as fast as you can. You're gonna have me hanging around! We got to go places and see things. And listen—if any of these dim-witted mugs try hornin' in, why, I got what it takes!"

By way of demonstration, he flexed his right arm so that a powerful biceps muscle bulged there. Lorena didn't quite know what to make of him.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Routing the Red Spider

Red spiders, or mites, are busy workers during the dry "dog days" of Summer. Almost too small to be seen with the naked eye, these mites suck the juices from the foliage of plants which they have attacked. The stricken foliage turns pale and is marked by reddish brown spots, then gradually dies and drops from the plant. Examination of foliage infested by mites will reveal a powdery appearance on the underside of the leaves. Closer examination will reveal the leaf to be covered with almost microscopic webs of the red spider.

Red spider is to be suspected if the tips of evergreens begin to turn brown. The illustration shows a simple way to determine if the mites are present. Place a piece of white paper under the evergreen branch and shake the top of the paper. The red mites, if present, will drop on to the paper where they can be seen with the naked eye.

To control red spider on evergreens, dust with a very fine sulfur. For control of the mites on other types of foliage, spray with Summer strength of lime-sulfur or with a rotenone or pyrethrum compound.

GARDEN-GRAPH
Routing the Red Spider
Red spiders, or mites, are busy workers during the dry "dog days" of Summer. Almost too small to be seen with the naked eye, these mites suck the juices from the foliage of plants which they have attacked. The stricken foliage turns pale and is marked by reddish brown spots, then gradually dies and drops from the plant. Examination of foliage infested by mites will reveal a powdery appearance on the underside of the leaves. Closer examination will reveal the leaf to be covered with almost microscopic webs of the red spider.

Red spider is to be suspected if the tips of evergreens begin to turn brown. The illustration shows a simple way to determine if the mites are present. Place a piece of white paper under the evergreen branch and shake the top the paper. The red mites, if present, will drop on to the paper where they can be seen with the naked eye.

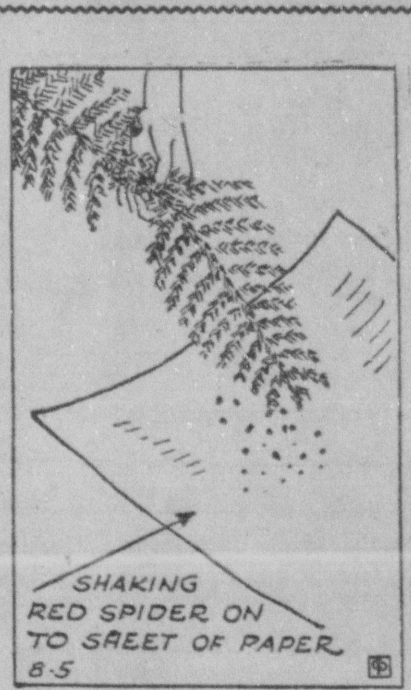

To control red spider on evergreens, dust with a very fine sulfur. For control of the mites on other types of foliage, spray with Summer strength of lime-sulfur or with a rotenone or pyrethrum compound.

SOLONS AT END OF LONG MEET

Social Security law amendments pegging the present one percent Social Security tax at its present level for another year were approved by the house at the last moment, and moved into position for certain senate approval during the forenoon.

Other minor legislative measures on the calendar were not expected to delay adjournment.

Senate advocates of W. P. A. prevailing wages, measures lifting the W. P. A. compulsory furlough after eighteen months of work, and other amendments to the deficiency bill were quickly blocked by the upper house as it ploughed through the deficiency measure.

It appeared this morning that the skeletal version of the bill approved by the senate would be written into law.

The senate was expected to dispose of all minor proposals in quick order this morning, and bring congress to an end during the early afternoon.

A series of legislative measures providing for between-the-session investigations were on the slate, and were likely to be approved.

NEW AGREEMENT SEEN AS BLOW AT JAP NATION

Russia To Buy $40,000,000 In Goods From Uncle Sam During Next 12 Months

(Continued from Page One) United States will accord Russia unconditional most-favored-nation treatment—meaning Soviet commerce is given the same treatment by this country as the commerce of all other nations, except "black-listed" Germany.

A lone exception is made in respect to Soviet coal. Exports of coal are limited to 400,000 tons annually, and the state department noted that with the same stipulation in last year's treaty the total shipped into this country was 134,154 tons.

The economic importance of the agreement to the United States is revealed by trade figures compiled by the Department of Commerce which reveal that American sales to the Soviet last year showed the largest increase of U. S. exports to any foreign market. Soviet purchases of American goods last year totaled $69,691,000, an increase of 62 percent over 1927, contrasted with an eight percent decrease of U. S. exports abroad generally.

The $69,691,000 Soviet purchases were made under the same agreement as that of the renewed pact.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 5—Held without bond, Owen Brigman, 28, an unemployed auto worker, wept in the county jail today while being questioned about the "kiss" slaying of his wife, Dorothy, 23. The grand jury will consider the case next week. Brigman pleaded not guilty at arraignment before a magistrate.

The Brigmans had been married eight years and had two children. Brigman admitted that he shot his wife as she sat on the porch at a friend's home. He said he found her with her arms around Bernier Whalen.

However, Whalen asserted that he and Mrs. Brigman were sitting far apart with the smallest Brigman child between them, when the husband began shooting. Brigman's signed confession stated that the couple had been "having trouble" ever since their marriage.

MANY INJURED AS GRANDSTAND AT PARK FALLS

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS, Mich., Aug. 5—Scores of softball fans were injured today after 250 were sent crashing to the ground as a new grandstand collapsed at Norgie field last night.

Three of the injured, Bonnie Lee Hohenstein, 5, Mildred Vitke, 25, and Earl Stockli, 22, were believed suffering from broken backs.

A near riot started after the collapse as approximately 7,000 persons rushed to the park in answer to a radio announcer's plea for help.

The announcer, broadcasting the game between the Norgie Corporation and Detroit Linen teams, announced the collapse immediately and asked for aid.

Six ambulances answered the call, but the 7,000 listeners who rushed to the scene clogged highways and made it impossible for the ambulances to take the injured to hospitals before the roads were cleared.

usually cleared the way to quitting by 5 p. m. at the latest.

Social Security law amendments pegging the present one percent Social Security tax at its present level for another year were approved by the house at the last moment, and moved into position for certain senate approval during the forenoon.

Other minor legislative measures on the calendar were not expected to delay adjournment.

Senate advocates of W. P. A. prevailing wages, measures lifting the W. P. A. compulsory furlough after eighteen months of work, and other amendments to the deficiency bill were quickly blocked by the upper house as it ploughed through the deficiency measure.

It appeared this morning that the skeletonized version of the bill approved by the senate would be written into law.

The senate was expected to dispose of all minor proposals in quick order this morning, and bring congress to an end during the early afternoon.

A series of legislative measures providing for between-the-session investigations were on the slate, and were likely to be approved.

NEW AGREEMENT SEEN AS BLOW AT JAP NATION

United States will accord Russia unconditional most-favored-nation treatment—meaning Soviet commerce is given the same treatment by this country as the commerce of all other nations, except "black-listed" Germany.

A lone exception is made in respect to Soviet coal. Exports of coal are limited to 400,000 tons annually, and the state department noted that with the same stipulation in last year's treaty the total shipped into this country was 134,154 tons.

The economic importance of the agreement to the United States is revealed by trade figures compiled by the Department of Commerce which reveal that American sales to the Soviet last year showed the largest increase of U. S. exports to any foreign market. Soviet purchases of American goods last year totaled $69,691,000, an increase of 62 percent over 1927, contrasted with an eight percent decrease of U. S. exports abroad generally.

The $69,691,000 Soviet purchases were made under the same agreement as that of the renewed pact.

Hands of Both Infected
Both had hands badly cut and infected from sliding down the gauge rope. King was carrying a Bible he said had been given him by Vandervort. He said Vandervort realized he couldn't travel far and had asked him to take the book to his sister in Wilmington. It was given Vandervort by his mother.

The two seemed willing to return to the prison, and declared their brief period of freedom hadn't been worth the long walk. King said that what he had enjoyed most was a bottle of beer he had with his meal at Springfield.

However, Whalen asserted that he and Mrs. Briggs were sitting far apart with the smallest Brigman child between them, when the husband began shooting. Brigman's signed confession stated that the couple had been "having trouble" ever since their marriage.

MUSKEGON HEIGHTS, Mich., Aug. 5—Scores of softball fans were injured today after 250 were sent crashing to the ground as a new grandstand collapsed at Norgie field last night.

Three of the injured, Bonnie Lee Hohenstein, 5, Mildred Vitke, 25, and Earl Stockil, 22, were believed suffering broken backs.

A near riot started after the collapse as approximately 7,000 persons rushed to the park in answer to a radio announcer's plea for help.

The announcer, broadcasting the game between the Norgie Corporation and Detroit Linen teams, announced the collapse immediately and asked for aid.

Six ambulances answered the call, but the 7,000 listeners who rushed to the scene clogged highways and made it impossible for the ambulances to take the injured to hospitals before the roads were cleared.
